Comet (Website: <http://www.comet.co.uk/comet/html/cache/ecometHome.html>)

LG Direct Drive Washing Machines

This machine does not use a belt and pulley to provide power. Instead, the belt and pulley are a part of a single motor that is attached to a drum. This increases the reliability and efficiency of the washing machine. It also consumes less energy and creates less noise and vibration than other washing machines.

Equator (Website: <http://www.equatoronline.com/combowashers.asp>)

EZ 3612 CEE Combo Washer/Dryer

This product is energy star approved. It is maintenance free and has the highest energy efficiency rating. Also, it has an excellent water consumption average of 9 gallons per cycle.

Fisher&Paykel: The Innovators

(from New Zealand, not the United States)

DishDrawer Dishwasher

This product is two dishwashers in one, but the dishwashers can operate independent of one another. There is also the option to purchase a DishDrawer with only one Dishwasher. It received a AAA water conservation rating and a five star energy rating. This dishwasher is fast, efficient, aesthetically pleasing, maximizes useable space, and minimizes environmental impact.

MCS

(Website: <http://www.mcs-oss.it/uk/bakemaster.html>)

The MCS Bakemaster is a tunnel oven that can be supplied with either a wiremesh or a stone plate baking conveyor. It can be adapted to bake a wide range of products such as: rolls (hearth-baked, in pays, or trays), bread, cakes, and pizza. It has low energy consumption. The heating system is “sealed” which allows the heat inside the oven to be used and maximum heat transfer to occur. The low energy consumption makes this product extremely efficient and environmentally friendly.

Whirlpool
