1k brick house

Brick is the most common indigenous material in rural China. The project explores maximized usage of bricks with $1000 constraint.

The house has verticalized interior layout with mezzanine structure, and responsive brick structure to it. The brick wall is thickened to support the mezzanine as well as to act as buttress for the load bearing brick wall. The various brick arrangement results in vibrant interior as well as functional support for the house itself.