2019 Blue Team Code of Values

Decision making
- We promise to make decisions in and create an environment as a team where all viewpoints are considered equal
- We shall provide or present the necessary information to the team so that we can make an informed decision
- We shall utilize objective analysis, not popular opinions to inform decisions

Integrity
- We will be honest in presenting opinions and results and won’t hold back data that undercuts individual wishes
- We will be open with one another when personal conflicts or unexpected situations arise
- We shall express our concerns openly
- We will engage in respectful conversations with potential customers, users, investors, Pappalardo and 2.009 staff and be receptive to their feedback
- We will uphold MIT’s standards for academic and personal integrity
- We will be honest in our portrayal of our final product to potential customers, users, and investors

Safety
- We will abide by Pappalardo and PDL Lab rules as well as the staff’s guidelines and instructions
- When in doubt about a tool, we will make sure to contact our tool officers or staff before utilizing any tool
- We will respect and follow the guidelines set forward by our safety officers

Product Before Designer
- We will put the team’s needs before our individual desires and act in the best interest of the team as a whole
- We will put forth our best effort to create a positive and creative team environment no matter the direction we choose to take

Teamwork
- We will value feedback and will pay attention whenever a teammate is conveying an idea and/or opinion
- We will reach out for help if we are unable to complete tasks on schedule
- We will support and care for other team members when in need
- We will check-in on one another throughout the semester and make sure we are getting proper sleep, eating correctly, and not taking on too much work
- We will help everyone gain the experience and skills they wish to obtain from 2.009
- We will represent our team with pride and enthusiasm
- We will each strive to attend all planned team events, while also respecting one another’s commitments
