This new Clairol discovery gives fine, limp hair the body to hold a set. Makes thin hair seem thicker, damaged hair healthier. It's Kindness™, with concentrated protein! No waiting, no washing it out. Just comb Kindness in. Now it's easy to have hair that looks strong and healthy.

All it takes is a minute from you.
And a little Kindness from Clairol.™

Now, 60 second conditioning.

Now that spring is here (?), the animals crawl out of their holes after a winter of hibernation. Similarly, the Tech tool also ventures out of his abode to face the outside world. To help prepare you for this ordeal, old Phos has put together an issue which will bring you up to date on all the fun things which have been going on in the world while you have been absorbed in your scholarly pursuits. If this doesn't convince you to lead the life of a hermit, we don't know what will.

Our readers never fail to amuse us. We publish a Mixed Nuts Issue, and within a few days the mails bring us many strange documents. The best of the entire lot was a plaintive cry from some sweet young lady in the Greater Boston Area. It was written on fine stationery complete with a picture of Tearalong the Dotted Lion, a real dotted lion (Felis leo) to cut along. The text ran:

"Dear Sir: I want to win your "Evening with Santa Claus" contest because you left me out of your "Mixed Nuts" issue, and I feel that some representative body from MIT should show me some recognition. I can compete with William J. McCormick himself, because I have also been bent religiously; and besides, I'm far more photogenic. My hobby used to be winning beauty contests but since the day I lost my virginity on the MIT campus, looking for it has taken up most of my time. Various MIT students have called me claiming to have found it, and even volunteering to replace it with no charge, but MIT tends to lie (or is it lay?), and I always end up getting a large charge after all. Since I have always wanted to climax

(an evening) at the North Pole, this trip would be a high point to me. In all sincerity, (name withheld for personal use.)"

Isn't that an interesting letter? We get millions of them. Why doesn't everyone write such nice things to us? We really enjoy them.

During the recent election most of the old standard posters and handbills were waving around the 'tute in grand style. But one new trick did manage to catch my eye, namely, those little "Sorry I missed you while you were out. I came by to talk to you about my running for the office of" cards. Those were just great. Why we began to leave "Sorry I'm not here while you are here to talk to me. But you see I don't want to talk about anything." cards ourselves. Every time we left we slapped one on our door. We also understand some character was leaving cards reading: "Hello there, my name is Hugh Jardon. While you were out I dropped by to tell about my missing you. So just go get quietly bent." We even got this very interesting one reading: "I am a deaf mute, working my way through school. Please accept this ballpoint pen. I will be grateful for any contributions." We wondered what he was running for?

We understand that TEN, one of our sister publications has a subscriber in Peking. Seems that they heard of The Red Guard Issue and subscribed to the wrong magazine. The worst part is that they might never realize their mistake. It's that bad around here.

A Wellesley Junior we were talking to the other day was feeling rather sad about her forthcoming twentieth birthday. She felt bad about losing her "teenhood". We think we know what she means.

And the Meek shall inherit the Mag...

Youth & Asia for Unemployed?

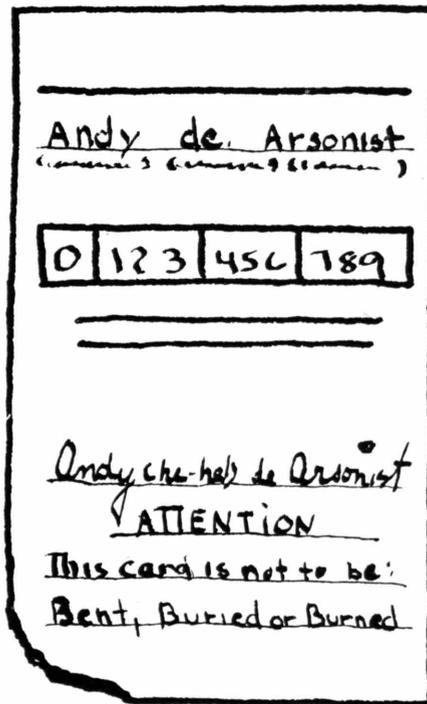

The United States Government has a unique way of solving its problems. It does this by creating new ones. Take the problem of unemployment. The nation is beleaguered by unemployed crawling all over the place. So, to put these people to work, we created a little war in an Asian nation, far, far away. Unfortunately, the enemies are funny little people. They don't like people coming in and opposing their plot to take over the country. So they donned their black pajamas and fought back.

This was not nice. The United States said, "We won't stand for this." So we sent in more men. Finally the whole thing got more and more involved, and soon it was escalated. We may have helped the unemployment problem, but we had a real war on our hands. Wars are bad. People get killed. Others demonstrate. They go to jail. If they are really bad, they get drafted. That is bad.

Unfortunately, old generals are in charge of the war effort. Old generals have a tendency not to be very considerate. They do mean things. Like drafting people who do not like the army. That is bad. They also have a funny definition of "unemployed". Some of them think that college students are "unemployed". But we know better.

Anyway, we still have lots of people out of work. We also have college students being drafted. That is bad. The war is a failure. We have not achieved our aim. But, as long as we are there, we might as well finish what we started. So we use napalm. Na-paln is bad. We promise not to kill civilians. But that is impossible. So we kill civilians. We are sorry to do this, but it is unavoidable. We say that we cannot tell the good guys from the bad guys. But we can surely tell our people from the bad guys. Yet, we sometimes miss, and kill our people. This is bad.

We promise to seek peace. We do seek peace. Every day a few generals meet in the Pentagon and talk about peace. But they do not really want peace. That will put them out of work. And you know what they do to the unemployed.

A little boy went to his mother and asked, "If dogs can have puppies, and cats can have kittens, why can't trains have choo-choos?"

His mother was busy and told him to go ask his father, who was reading the newspaper and had no time to discuss the matter, and so told his son to go ask the conductor at the train station.

When the little boy got to the station and asked the conductor his very important question, he was told to ask the engineer, whom he found sitting in his engine.

When the engineer heard the boy's question, he looked at him for a long minute and then asked, "Son, did your father send you here to ask me that?"

The little boy said, "Yes, sir."

Whereupon the engineer said, "Well, you go tell him that the Baltimore & Ohio always pulls out on time."

An Idaho potato and a California spud were wed. Soon along came a little sweet potato. Papa spud became concerned about his little sweet potato as she matured. One day he asked her who she wanted to marry. The sweet potato replied, John Cameron Swayze.

"No!" screamed the horrified papa spud. "Why, he's just a common tater." Get it? Common tater?

A young woman entered the apartment of the famous detective Sherlock Holmes and asked him to enter her employ. When Holmes asked for a thousand dollar advance the woman demanded proof of his professional competence.

After inspecting her for several moments he concluded, "Young lady, you're not wearing any underwear."

"That's true," she replied, "but how did you know?"

"Elementary, my dear. You have dandruff on your feet."

The man never could figure out why his wife wouldn't sleep with him. . . . Try as he might, his efforts always were to no avail. . . . Finally his curiosity got the best of him, and he decided to watch his wife undress. So he climbed into the chandelier in her room and waited for her to arrive. Soon she walked into the room and began to undress.

First she removed her falsies. Then she unstrapped her left leg, right arm, and assorted phony fingers and toes. The wig came off next followed by eyelashes, ears, and nose. As she was working on her left eye, the husband could stand no more.

"Aha!" he cried.

"Eek! What do you want?" answered the startled wife.

"You know what I want! Throw it up here!"

Two old maids were sitting alone in their apartment one night when there was a knock at the door. One got up to answer it. She talked to the caller and shouted back to the first, "There's a young soldier outside. He's a veteran with a purple heart on."

"It doesn't matter," replied the other slightly deaf woman, "what color it is. Bring him in!"

Mother: "Shh, son, go to sleep. It's twelve o'clock and the sandman's coming."

Son: "Fifty cents and I won't tell Daddy."

There was a pitcher with the Giants named Mel Famie. He was a lousy pitcher and spent the game drinking beer in the bullpen. By the end of the game he was always dead drunk.

One day the Giants and Dodgers were locked in a tie, 18-18, going into the last of the ninth. Mel Famie was the only Giant pitcher available to pitch this all important inning. He was so surprised to see the manager beckon toward him that he just stuck his beer can into his back pocket and trudged to the mound. He walked the first three men on 12 straight pitches. Bearing down, he struck out the next two. The crowd was tense, the players were tense - that is all except Mel Famie, who was pretty loose. The count went to 3 and 2 and then Mel Famie threw the fourth ball that lost the game.

As he was walking off the field, one Dodger asked another, "Hey! What's that beer can in Famie's pocket?" "Don't you know?" was the reply, "That's the beer that made Mel Famie walk us."

"It's not the work I enjoy," said the MBTA driver, "It's the people I run into."

WHY IT IS NOT GOOD TO GET DRAFTED

"Fighting is work. It is more dangerous than most kinds of work." — A. Chapman

The above quotation, which I quoted above, is very timely today. This is because of the drastic revisions being made in the draft law of the United States. So, to make a short story long, which is what you do when you write for this magazine because you want to fill up space, I shall discuss the above quotation and its relevance to the status quo.

First of all, fighting is work. You know, carrying guns and cleaning your boots and that kind of stuff. It's especially bad because with most kinds of work you stop working by not doing work, but with fighting, to stop working you have to do more work. For example, if you are mopping a floor, you only have to put down the mop to stop working. But, if you are fighting, in order to stop that work, you have to retreat, which is also work, like running and hiding and blending into the terrain.

Now, it is quite true that fighting is more dangerous than most kinds of work. Of course, all kinds of work have their disadvantages. Dishwashers may get sore hands, floor scrubbers may get sore knees, etc. But these are all insignificant. Consider: the fighter may get death!

How distasteful! Do you want to work? Of course not! But if you get drafted, you will be doing exactly that. So you don't want to get drafted. That's the bit. Take steps now, my friends. Go out and puncture your eardrums. Get a hernia or two. It's worth it.

And now, the Bearded Wonder presents a playlet which reveals the intimate workings of the U.S. Government, especially with regard to the fulfillment of military quotas.

4th year (1966) REPORT. Like the first 3 years. No one would sign my methods of approach (or offer theirs for me to sign) for the solution or analysis of a case of alley Rubbish or Filth. — Received one inquiry from an address. 1st letter to address stayed out.-answered. 2nd letter to name same address stayed out. 3rd letter to name same address (answered rest of points of letter) returned unknown. 4th letter to address returned unknown. — Just imagine at the school level. Extra curriculum clubs just recording alley filth (same area or different). AND making no kind of effort to change it. JUST RECORD. Each time the area is checked there is a discussion followed by a social hour. This will bring ideas from all areas of school learning. If the recording over the years shows improvement & creativeness, then in later years the students (after maturity) might turn the dream solutions to realism.

Sent a letter to Lawrence Benoche-President, Kankakee Federation of Labor-asking if he would sign a form to solicit the treasures of local unions in an effort to form an organization to collect public records on a continuous basis. Received no reply.

Sent a letter to L. R. Hutcheson-Mgr. local Illinois Bell Telephone Co. & Herb Hess, Supt. Streets & Alleys-asking if they would sign an ad to test the Efficiency of telephone workers for removing unwanted materials from alleys & homes. All telephone calls, all mail, payment for advertising, etc. would be paid for by BROWN CROSS. Received no replies.

Made an effort to publish as paid advertising the 1965 BROWN CROSS REPORT in newspapers, magazines & school newspapers. By March 18 I discovered an ECONOMIC & SOCIAL LAW from the effort. June 27 I sent the law & the data I based it on to President Lyndon B. Johnson, all members of our Congress from the district I live in & several other members of Congress. July 11 I received a reply from an Assistant to the President. — By Oct. 17-1966 the ad was sent to 344 newspapers & magazines. ONLY one of those that sent replies I had to reject on starting price and then the ad would have to pass other clearance. Several others rejected the ad after I accepted the price or returned the money. The ad was published by the following: Mason County Democrat, Havana Ill.; Lewiston News, Lewistown Ill.; Argus Searchlight, Astoria Ill.; Fulton County Democrat, Lewistown Ill.; Omaha Public Ledger, Omaha Nebra.; Franklin County Times, Russellville Ala.; Times Observer, Irwin Pa.; 32 Newspapers in Saskatchewan & Manitoba Canada(Homstown Publications, Moose-Jaw Saskatchewan); Journal, Cuba Ill (a part of the Lewistown News); Red Bay News, Red Bay Ala.; Irwin Standard, Irwin Pa.; Terry Tribune, Terry Mont.; Star Valley Independent, Afton Wyo.; Mindano Times, Dauvo City Philippines. The ad was also sent to 146 schools. It was published by the following: Vanderbilt, Hustler; Daily Cardinal (Wis. U); Harvard Crimson; Wittenburg Torch; Purdue Exponent; Daily Nebraskan; VooDoo M.I.T.; Bradley Scout; Oberlin Review; Michigan Daily; Kentucky Kernel; Duke Chronicle. From all other sources not in the control group. The ad was published by: Momence Ill. Progress Reporter; Emington Ill. Joker; Reville Echo (school).

From all that accepted the ad only 2 (just 2) sent me a post ad sales letter. Hometown Publications, Canada & Purdue Exponent.

The ECONOMIC & SOCIAL LAW is: 1-There is NO such thing as FREEDOM OF SPEECH. 2-If there was (FREEDOM OF SPEECH) NO modern country could fight a war. 3-The satisfactions of the powers that be (because there is no such thing as FREEDOM OF SPEECH) are equal to the nits that bait a couple of tavern girls into a fight.

Test it YOURSELF.

Engineering to eliminate FILTH is a big one. It's a GOLD MINE. EVERYBODY can work on it.

Attest: Cecil Kraft, 385 N. Chicago Ave., Kankakee, Illinois. Present Guidance (self-appointed) BROWN CROSS. REMEMBER, THE SERVICES ARE FREE.

LEAVE IT TO RODENT

By Tom Strand

(Scene opens in the kitchen with Rodent's mother beaming benevolently on her son who is woofing down a peanut butter and jelly sandwich between gulps of milk.)

Mother to Rodent: (starts to chuckle) Don't be such a pig, Rodent. When you eat like that you remind me of your father. He never did have any manners.

(Rodent gives mother a sidelong look. Seeing that she still has his attention, she continues.)

Mother: (smiling) I just can't understand why he is such an absolute Phillistine. Why is it that you and he are such boors? Can you tell me why? Why is that?

(When Rodent hears the word Phillistine he throws the remnants of his sandwich in the general direction of the sink and walks out of the kitchen. The camera remains on mother while she delivers the rest of her speech to Rodent's sandwich.)

Camera then switches to Rodent who enters the bathroom and locks the door after himself. He walks over to the medicine cabinet and removes a jar of Vaseline Petroleum jelly. Rodent then stares into the mirror and prods his face with his forefinger looking for blemishes. Finding none, he smears some vaseline on his hair and begins to comb it with long, deliberate strokes.)

Rodent: (grinning) Jeepers-creepers! What a dumb-head.

(Camera switches to Mary who tries the bathroom door and finds it locked.)

Suspecting that Rodent is inside, she steps back and places her hands on her hips, palms inward.)

Mary: (teeth clenched in a grimace) Rodent! You little fink! Is that you in there? Answer me, you little Phillistine!

(Mary stops abruptly and turns halfway around as she hears her father enter downstairs. Before she can return her attention to Rodent, he bolts past her, knocking her over, and throws himself down the stairs.)

Rodent: (screaming ecstatically) Dad! Dad! Daaaaaarrrrgh!

(Camera zooms in on father's face. He looks drawn and haggard. But upon hearing Rodent's greeting, his lips break into a wide toothy grin, and he winks at his son as he falls down the stairs.)

Father: (exhilarated) That's my boy!

(Father shakes his head as if he can't believe what a wonderful son he has. He then walks over to Rodent who is sprawled out at the foot of the stairs, bends over, and gives him a fatherly pat on his fanny-wanny. He then straightens himself, and announces in a loud voice:)

Father: (smiles) Honey-sugar-dumpling! Mary! I'm home!

(A toilet then flushes upstairs. Father waits a moment, and hearing no response, walks over to the couch and lies down. Camera comes in for a close-up of his face as he stares up at the ceiling with an absentminded smile on his face.)

COMMERCIAL

(Scene opens in the dining room with the whole family seated at the table. Father serves steaming beans and franks out in generous servings. He fills three plates, and in the process of filling the fourth, it slips out of his hand. There are beans on father, beans on mother, beans on everything. Everyone is highly delighted by father's little slip, and merrily laugh with unparalleled camaraderie.)

Camera switches to mother, who seems to be trying to say something, but cannot because of her own convulsive laughter. With considerable effort, she restrains herself only long enough to say:)

Mother: Phillistine!

(She then again breaks into gales of laughter, which prompts everyone else to do likewise.)

The excitement gradually dies down. Everyone becomes quiet, and looks at his own plate while eating. Occasionally someone glances at someone else with a bowed and unmoving head. The silence becomes oppressive. Finally, Mary says:)

Mary: (sheepishly grinning) Hildegard is pregnant.

(Everyone is relieved and grateful that the silence is broken, and all start to laugh merrily. Camera zooms in on Rodent.)

Rodent: (grinning) Pregnant?

(Father turns to mother with a wonderful smile on his face, and mother looks at the beans on father's tie. Father looks back at Mary, then to Rodent, and says:)

Father: (smiling) That's wonderful, Mary. Rodent, "pregnant" means that Hildegard is going to be paid a visit by the floppy-woppy silly ole stork. Do you understand that, son?

Rodent: (sneering) You mean she got knocked . . .

(Camera zooms in on Mary's foot as she cuts short Rodent's reply with a swift kick in the shins.)

Rodent: (smiling) Yelp! Oooooh!

Ouch! Cut it out, dodo!

(Rodent points at Mary and exclaims:)

Rodent: You said today that Hildegard got knocked up!

(Camera focuses on Mary who looks ashamed. She then gives a venomous sidelong glance at Rodent, who looks triumphant. The camera then goes to father, who looks with raised eyebrows at mother, who is looking at the beans on father's tie. Father then turns his attention to Rodent with a patient, paternal smile.)

Father: Rodent, I once read a book that was written by a very wise man. I think the book was supposed to be a profound allegory. Anyway, there is one part where Thumper (he was a little bunny rabbit) made a snide remark about how stupid Bambi looked (he was the hero of the novel, and represented virtue). Thumper's mother hears him, and says to Thumper (and this is the point, Rodent), "If you can't say something nice, don't say anything at all."

(Camera pans Mary, Rodent and Mother, who look suitably awed and grateful for father's last remark.)

Father: (aside) I wonder who put it to Hildegard?

COMMERCIAL

(Scene opens with everyone finishing dinner. But before anyone pushes away from the table, mother intervenes:)

Mother: (smiling) Haven't you forgotten something, Rodent?

(Camera goes over to Rodent's face. There is overt worry and concentration in his expressions. He appears to be examining his most recent sins and their respective excuses. His eyes nervously shift from side to side. After about a minute of this, he stops shifting his eyes, snaps his fingers, and says:)

Rodent: (grinning) My peanut butter and jelly sandwich!

Mother: (winking at Rodent) That's right you darling little boor.

(With this, mother reaches into her bra, removes the half-eaten sandwich, and tosses it over to Rodent. He gleefully starts to gobble the sandwich down. Camera shifts to father.)

Father: (beaming) Isn't your mother wonderful, Rodent?

(Rodent nods his head vigorously.)

Father: (still beaming) I'm so lucky. She doesn't let a single penny of my hard-earned savings go to waste.

(With that, father looks lovingly over at mother, who says:)

Mother: (smiling) And that reminds me, you still haven't eaten the beans off your tie.

Father: HAHAAHAHAHAHA....

Mother: HAHAAHAHAHAHA....

Mary: HAHAAHAHAHAHAHA....

Rodent: HAHAAHAHAHAHAHA....

HIM: (worried) Do you use "the pill" or something else?

HER: The pill, of course.

HIM: Why? Is it safer?

HER: No. It's just much easier to insert.

He walks into work with two black eyes:

BOSS: What happened to you? Did you get into a fight or something?

HIM: No. I called my wife a two-bit whore and she hit me with a bag of quarters.

A man called the undertaker one afternoon, and sobbed:

"Come and bury my wife."

"But I buried your wife," said the undertaker. "Ten years ago."

"I got married again," the man sobbed.

"Oh," said the undertaker. "Congratulations."

Sue: "If you can't type, take dictation, file or keep books, why does your boss pay you such a huge salary?"

Jane: "I can't conceive."

The beautiful 18-year-old girl, sobbing quietly at the funeral services for her 75-year-old husband, was overheard confiding to a solicitous neighbor:

"We had such a happy marriage for the six months it lasted. Every Sunday morning he would make love to me, and he'd keep time with the church bells that summoned you all to services."

She sobbed a little, then said with rising animation, "And he'd still be alive today if it weren't for that damned fire engine that went clanging by!"

A pair of very gay fellows who had been living together in conjugal bliss for some time, decided they just couldn't stand being with one another any more.

So they agreed to split their household possessions and go their own ways.

But in divvying up their worldly treasures they hit another snag. Each claimed ownership of a certain charreuse necktie.

"Now stop this arguing at once," said one of them. "I'm simply bushed after all our other quarreling and now you add to my fatigue by saying this is your tie. You're impossible."

"Well, pooh, pooh," said the other. "As if you have a priority on being tired. Why, how do you think I feel after all we've meant to each other? So cut it out — and give me back my tie!"

"I won't, I won't!" was the reply, and so it went on for hours.

Finally, one broke. "Oh, damn, all right. If you want to be mean and spiteful about it, I don't care. Take the wretched old tie. And you know what you can do with it!"

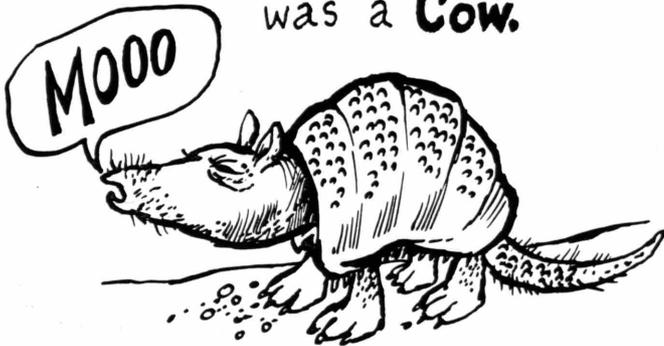

"Oh," whispered the other, hoarsely. "So now you want to make up!"

The Alabama Literacy Test

Ever noted for its progressive legislation, Alabama has long promoted higher standards in voting with its (in) famous Literacy Test. VooDoo, that sterling organization dedicated to good citizenship (and free beer), has unearthed a copy of this test and has discovered that there are not one but two versions: one for Whites and one for Others.

First we present a White Literacy Test, which, while not an actual copy of the test used, is representative of the level of literacy expected of the average white Alabama voter.

ALABAMA LITERACY TEST – WHITE

1. The sun rises in the (East, West, North, South)
2. The third letter of the alphabet is (z, c, y, q)
3. Complete the series: 1, 2, , 4, 5

Maybe you'll never race it...but you'll be tempted

Of course you'll be tempted! After all, the Austin Healey Sprite is bred to be used sportingly and competitively. It is a bona fide sports car. The official SCCA rating: Class H or Class G, depending on the year.

Of course you'll be tempted! (But even if you never race, the power you may someday need is there.) The competition-proved Austin Healey engine turns up speeds in excess of 90 mph. There are twin carbs and 4-speed shift. Sprite can sprint...and keep on going!

Of course you'll be tempted! (But even if you never race, the roadability you will surely enjoy is there.) The steering is never spongy or indefinite; and the redesigned rear suspension encourages impeccable manners. Sprite is as sure-footed through the corners as any other runners.

Of course you'll be tempted! (But even if you never race, the control you must always have is there.) There are big disc brakes up front and 7" drums in the rear. Sprite's stopping power is commensurate with its performance.

Of course you'll be tempted...tempted to prove that your Sprite can do as handsomely as it looks. We have wrapped everything in the smoothest possible envelope—modern, Spartan and rather lovely.

All this and roll-up windows.

All this and 30 plus m.p.g.

All this for under $2,000.*

Temptation rears its lovely head—at your Austin Healey dealer. Give in gracefully.
