

THE HITCHHIKER'S GUIDE

CLASS OF 200

Panic!

Take a deep breath. You are really here. A lifetime of bullshitting and letting your parents do your homework for you has finally begun to pay off. Coming to MIT has been one of the most important decisions of your life, right up there with deciding who you tried to ask to prom. Now that you're here, you'll see that you're only at the starting line of a marathon of disappointment that ends not with a ribbon, but with a degree of schizophrenia. Be it gratifying or grueling, unexpectedly humorous or inspirational, it is a life-altering journey you'll spend countless hours in therapy trying to understand.

There's no need to stress! You'll have plenty of time for that later. For now, get to know Boston, meet your classmates, participate in a sport; there is plenty to take in along the way. The purpose of the Hitchhiker's Guide to Orientation is to provide a map to help you navigate through the week, highlighting events and activities taking place on campus and in the Boston area. In other words, its a fucking schedule, you dipshit.

Just as fine tuned athletes, you have all worked long and hard to make it this far, and will abuse amphetamines and be subjected to countless drug tests. Some sexual challenges you will overcome individually, but many you will overcome as a team. If you're fortunate, you'll have one of the most culturally and intellectually diverse student bodies to help you get laid along the way. Remember that it is not the climax but the journey that matters most, and before you know it you'll have blazed up past the people doing lines of coke outside your bathroom.

Epilogue

Congratulations! You've completed the first leg of your journey at MIT – Orientation. There's plenty to look forward to, but in the meantime we hope that you have gotten to know your classmates a little bit and picked up at least one STD along the way. In just a few short years, the class of 2008 (besides those that drunk themselves to death) will gather in Killian Court for graduation, the finish line.

MAke the most of your time and dont be afraid to step off the beaten path and try a "tossed salad" or a foursome with your Baker quad-mates. Take your challenges in stride and remember, MIT Medical can determine whether those bumps on your scrotum are acne or herpes. Good luck and never forget to strive for the golden shower.

Vintage/Retro/Space Filler Version

Campus Map

Main Campus is the big chunk between Mem. Drive, Mass Ave, Vassar and Ames St. The main attraction is Killian Court, which looks like a green cock drawn with 4-bit graphics. This is prime Japanese-tourist viewing grounds in good weather. To the east are the even-numbered buildings, to the west there are none. Surrounding Killian Kock are the original buildings from The Great MIT Migration of 1916. Building 10 is the thing in the middle right under the Great Dome. If you have trouble finding a building that looks like a huge tit, finding your way around MIT is the least of your worries. Once you know where 10 is, note the left/right symmetry of the main campus. Useless, isn't it? Anyway: east of building 10 are 4, 8, 6 and 2. If you are a goddamn math geek, you will spend most of your time in Building 2. John Nash was a math geek in Building 2 once, and he was areal asshole. Let that be a lesson. Building 6 is cold, but has the secret ninja courtyard. Building 4 is a useless piece of shit where the music majors inflict their atonal chorus line routines on the ears of anyone stupid enough to walk by (like the math dorks headed to class). Building 8 has some displays that haven't been changed since about 1986 -- much like the fuckheads who run this school.

West of Building 10 are some other buildings (1, 3, 5, 7, 11) filled with administrators and fratboy Mech-E students. Lobby 7, in building 5, was recently cleaned for the first time in 50 years -- however the NE corner of the lobby is still a designated graffiti wall. From the outside, the Building 7 dome also looks like a breast -- however, it was built smaller than the Great Dome in deference to the masses of A-cup Asian premeds living on West Campus. Building 3 is useless. Avoid it. The mythical "Civil Engineering" department has wild orgies in Building 1 at night, but that's because the PhysPlant workers there are all from Barbados.
