

Purifiers of the World

Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned

Romans 5:12

When Adam ate of the fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, God cast him out of the garden of Eden and cursed him and all his descendents. Adam's sin passes down from generation to generation of man, and with that sin comes the curse of death.

Thus is it that Adam's sin is the root cause of all the suffering of humanity. War, plague, hatred, jealousy, greed... all the suffering of man stems from Adam's sin and God's curse.

But a small group of people have realized a way to save the world from Adam's sin – replace the line of Adam with a new line of man, one born free of the taint of original sin...

Clones.

For as clones are not born of the line of Adam, they are not cursed by God. A world descended from clones would be a world free of suffering, pain, and sin. It would be Eden reborn, a paradise of righteous men living under God's will.

For years you have waited for science to finally discover how to clone humans; many thought this problem would have been solved decades ago, but it has remained stubbornly out of science's grasp... until now.

One member of your organization, Father Guiseppe Alenio, was the late Pope's confessor. Earlier this week, while visiting the Pope on his deathbed, title Guiseppe found his eye drawn to a letter sitting next to the Pope's bed. He found the letter to be from a local scientist, Dr. Clemente Mastella, who claimed to have finally cracked the mystery of human cloning. The Pope, noticing his interest in the letter, explained that the doctor had contacted him seeking a Papal blessing upon his enterprise and his discoveries; apparently the Pope's doctor had gone over the claims in the letter and said that he believed that the scientist had accomplished what he claimed.

When title Guiseppe left his audience with the Pope, he had the letter with him, in hopes that it would give you the ability to contact the scientist and convince him to sell his discovery to you, assuming he didn't plan on publishing it to the world.

You were going to contact him soon. But then, three days ago, title Mastella's lab was destroyed by a fire, and he died in the blaze. It seems likely that someone opposed to his research decided to take action to prevent the auction from occurring. It seemed that your hopes for his work to finally turn out to be the long-awaited key to human cloning had been dashed.

But then, yesterday, Bartolomeo Quist, one of your local members, saw a calico cat on the streets of Vatican City – and suddenly realized that he'd seen that cat before. The letter that title Guiseppe had brought to you had included a photograph of the scientist in question, holding a calico cat – the same one that title Quist saw in the Vatican! Furthermore, it had on its collar what looked like a digital storage device... Bartolomeo didn't manage to catch the cat before it slipped through a crack into the sewers, alas.

On the other hand, the existence of whatever data is on that cat's collar gives you hope – if you can get ahold of that cat, chances are good that the information on that device will help you discover the key to human cloning, or point you at someone who can. Check your greensheet for more information.

While acquiring the secrets of cloning is an essential element to your plan, a similarly important opportunity has arisen locally that may provide you with the another crucial part – a nuclear weapon.

It has come to your attention that an automated Russian missile submarine has grounded itself on the seafloor near the Italian coastline. This presents you with an unprecedented opportunity to acquire a nuclear weapon. Your organization has been attempting to acquire one through black channels for some time and has been coming up empty. Should you be able to acquire this weapon (see your greensheet for details) and the secrets of cloning technology, you will finally be able to move your goal from the planning stages into actual implementation.

For simply creating clones is not enough to bring about the return of Eden – the sons of Adam have filled the world. Most would not welcome the coming of a new line of man, one without original sin. There would be no opportunity for clones to replace the sons of Adam, and clones in all of their purity living side-by-side with sinners would not purge the world of sin.

So the line of Adam must be ended.

Your plan is to seed the world with nuke-proof bunkers buried deep underground and filled with genetic material and cloning machines – thousands of clones-to-be, no two alike, preserving His Own Image in all its myriad forms as it is found across the world. Once this has been completed, careful use of a nuclear detonation in a time of crisis should trigger World War III, and the resulting devastation and disruption should wipe humanity off the face of the earth. Then, thousands of years later, the bunkers will open, releasing the clones onto an earth cleansed of the taint of sin, and Eden will be reborn.

You have before you an unprecedented opportunity to acquire the two most critical elements of your plan. You must not let them slip through your fingers!

- Acquire a nuclear warhead.
- Maintain the secrecy of your organization and plans.
