A Toast to the East Coast

The idea of my final project was a final goodbye to Boston. I am leaving in a few days for good with my girlfriend. The picture is dedicated to her, in the martini glass are the heads of all of her friends that she has made in Boston. I wanted the image to be comical because our time here has been fun and I want to remember all the good times.

I had to scan in many different pictures to photoshop in order to paste them all together. The martini glass has many different layers to provide the color and transparency differences. I think the image was successful. The composition is kind of weak and the colors need work. But all in all I have produced something that I will proudly hang on my wall.
