“Non-Resident” Tax Information Sessions for International Scholars

(Visiting scholars, lecturers, postdocs, and other non-student researchers)

The International Scholars Office staff will provide general information about federal (U.S.) and Massachusetts state tax filing requirements for non-resident aliens for tax purposes and give instructions for using Thomson Reuters Foreign National Tax Resource. Please note: Both sessions cover the same material

Session 1: Tuesday, February 26, 2019
9:30 am to 10:30 am
Room 34-101 (campus map)

Session 2: Wednesday, March 13, 2019
9:30 am to 10:30 am
Room 32-123 MIT Stata Center (campus map)

Thomson Reuters FNTR is an Internet-based system available to international scholars with MIT certificates and kerberos passwords. The website contains detailed tax-related information and resources as well as tax preparation software.
https://web.mit.edu/scholars/mitonly/windstarlinks.html

Thomson Reuters FNTR tax preparation software is designed primarily for Nonresident Aliens for Federal Tax Purposes, who are in F, J, M, or Q visa status. The tax preparation software module will be available in February.

ISchO is not able to answer questions specific to your individual tax situation or tax return.
