With a new administration in Washington and the upcoming Nuclear Proliferation Treaty review conference, much hangs in the balance of US-Chinese relations. Join us for this timely visit to MIT by a group of distinguished Chinese scholars and activists. Bring your questions and hopes for a peaceful, nuclear weapons-free future. The delegation includes Mao Rubai, Former Chairman of the Energy Committee of the People's Congress, and Niu Qiang, who spent nearly two decades working on issues of disarmament, nonproliferation, and on anti-nuclear issues with the UN, the Committee for Science and World Affairs, and elsewhere.
