Dear Brothers and Sisters,

This is the first truth of every prayer: even if we were perfect persons, even if we were crystalline saints who never deflect from a life of goodness, we always remain children who owe all to the Father.

What is the most dangerous attitude of every Christian life? It’s pride. It’s the attitude of one who puts himself before God, thinking that he always has his accounts with Him in order. The proud person believes he has everything in its place. As that Pharisee of the parable, who thinks he is praying in the Temple but who, in reality, praises himself before God: “I thank you, Lord because I’m not like the others.” People who think they are perfect, who criticize others, are proud people. Not one of us is perfect, not one. The publican, on the contrary, a sinner held in contempt by all in the Temple, stops on the threshold of the Temple and doesn’t feel worthy to enter, but rather he entrusts himself to God’s mercy. And Jesus comments: “He, as opposed to the other, went home justified” (Luke 18:14), namely, forgiven, saved. Why? —because he wasn’t proud; because he acknowledged his limitations and his sins.

There are sins that are seen and sins that aren’t seen. There are blatant sins that make noise, but there are also subtle sins, which nest in the heart without our even realizing it. The worst of these is pride, which can infect even persons that live an intense religious life. There was once in a convent of sisters, in the years 1600-1700, famous at the time of Jansenism for their perfectionism; it was said of them that they were pure as angels but proud as devils. Pride is an awful thing.

Sin divides fraternity; sin makes us presume that we are better than others; sin makes us believe we are similar to God. And, instead, before God, we are all sinners and we have reason to beat our breast— all of us! as that publican in the Temple. In his First Letter, Saint John writes: “If we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us” (1 John 1:8). If you want to deceive yourself, say that you have no sin: so you are deceiving yourself.

We are debtors, first of all, because we have received so much in this life: existence, a father and a mother, friendship, the wonders of Creation . . . Even if it happens to all to go through difficult days, we must always remember that life is a grace, it’s a miracle that God extracted from nothing.

In the second place, we are debtors because, even if we succeed in loving, none of us is able to do so with his or her own strength. True love is when we can love with God’s grace. None of us shines with our own light. Ancient theologians spoke of a “mysterium lunae” not only in the identity of the Church, but also in the history of each one of us. What did they mean by “mysterium lunae”? That we are like the moon, which does not have its own light, but rather reflects the light of the sun. We Christians also don’t have our own light: the light we have is a reflection of the grace of God, of the light of God. If you love it’s because someone, outside of you, smiled at you when you were a child, teaching you to respond with a smile. If you love, it’s because someone next to you has awakened you to love, making you understand how the meaning of existence resides in that.

So let us try to listen to the story of a person who has made a mistake: a prisoner, a condemned man, a drug addict… we know so many people who make mistakes in life. Without prejudice to their own responsibility, which is always personal, sometimes one does wonder whether others must also be blamed for their mistakes, whether it’s only a person’s conscience, or whether there’s a history of hatred and abandonment that someone carries behind him.

And this is the mystery of the moon: we love first of all because we have been loved; we forgive because we have been forgiven. And if the sun’s light hasn’t illuminated someone, he becomes frozen like the ground in winter.

In the chain of love that precedes us, how can we not also recognize the provident presence of God’s love? No one of us loves God as He has loved us. Suffice it to place oneself before a crucifix to understand the disproportion. He has loved us and always loves us first.

Therefore, let’s pray: Lord, even the holiest in our midst doesn’t cease to be your debtor. O, Father, have mercy on us all!
