The Prof.: "Only fools ask questions wise men can't answer."

Senior: "No wonder I drew a zero."

— Bear Skin

"At last I have something on you," said ye gallant stude to his co-ed, as he deftly fastened the safety clasp of his fraternity pin.

— Panther

"De noive of dat guy," complained Jimmy, the demon office boy, "offerin' me six dollars a week. Wha's he think I am? A college graduate?"

— Mercury

"I call that adding insult to injury."

"What's that?"

"Canning Jones for being pickled."

Easily Solved

Teacher: "How did Robinson Crusoe live?"

Willie Willis (whose father is a publisher): "Off the royalties from his book, I suppose."

— Judge

Freshie: "Let's speak to those two dames on the corner."

Wise Soph: "'Sno use, they are telephone girls."

Freshie: "What of it?"

Soph: "They won't answer."

— Ski-U-Mah

Baby: "I want my bottle."

Mother: "Shut up, you sound like your father."

— Amherst Lord Jeff

She: "Do you see that man over there?"

He: "Nope. I can't see him."

She: "I don't see why not. He's in perfectly full view."

He: "I know it. But I'm not looking at him."

— Gargoyle

Which Type of Research is of Greatest Value?

A stove burns too much coal. A man familiar with the principles of combustion and heat radiation makes experiments which indicate desirable changes in design. That is research.

You want to make a ruby in a factory, a real ruby, indistinguishable by any test from the natural stone. You begin by analyzing rubies chemically and physically. Then you make rubies just as nature did. Your rubies are the result of research—another type of research.

While melting up your chemicals and experimenting with high temperatures, you begin to wonder how hot the earth must have been millions of years ago, and what were the forces at play that made this planet what it is. Your investigation leads you far from rubies and causes you to formulate theories to explain how the earth, how the whole solar system was created. That would be research of a still different type.

Research of all three types is conducted in the laboratories of the General Electric Company. But it is the third type—pioneering into the unknown—that means most in the long run, even though undertaken with no practical benefit in view.

For example, the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company are exploring matter with X-rays in order to discover not only how the atoms in different substances are arranged but how the atoms themselves are built up. The more you know about a substance, the more you can do with it. This work may enable scientists to answer more definitely the question: Why is iron magnetic? Then the electrical industry will take a greater step forward than can be made in a century of experimenting with existing electrical apparatus.

You can add wings and stories to an old house. But to build a new house, you must begin with the foundation.

VOO DOO enters with this issue the fifth collegiate year of its publication. From a small paper of eight pages it has grown to be a full size magazine, and enjoys third place in circulation among the college comics of the country.

Its sale is largely among students and undergraduates of the largest and greatest engineering school in America, and its readers are the holders of a vast power of purchase. To Boston and its immediate suburbs, the student body alone brings some $60,000 each week. The amount of money which students and graduates control each week thru their personal and business relations is enormous indeed.

That the advertising patrons of VOO DOO may reach the readers they desire to interest most effectively, the VOO DOO has now instituted an advertising service which stands ready and glad to perform any reasonable service the advertiser may request.

Correspondence from advertisers is welcomed, and will be promptly handled. All opportunities which the Management of the VOO DOO discovers to aid the advertiser will be used, but the suggestions of the latter are solicited. Please address all correspondence to the General Manager.

Fall

Again the struggle to commence
We, the chosen few, return.
The workings of our feeble minds
To train, and useful things to learn.

The autumn's falling leaves will serve
As symbol of fast flying time.
Then winter enters on its sway,
Symbol of nature's power each day.

Then spring once more us doth regard ;
It tells us all is not so hard
If we but try. Thus ends our year
And soon, too soon, the end draws near,
Thus, let us make the most of time !
For waste of youth is mankind's greatest crime.

A. R. B.

Oh, horrors, Horace is your name;
Who lucre from me lures;
I often wonder how my wad
Your fee so large endures.

But as I step before your pales
And split with you my roll
A sort of coma o'er me creeps
And settles on my soul.

Were it not for your fair cashier,
Oh, how I would be grieved!
But looking in her dreamy eyes,
Who says I'm not relieved?

A TECHNOLOGY MUSEUM

It is rumored that Technology may endow and maintain a museum for the purpose of collecting and preserving relics that may be of traditional value in years to come. Even Phosphorus, with all his feline sagacity, has been unable to substantiate this rumor, but he offers the following list of relics should a museum be established:

- Exhibit A* An autographed program of the last annual Physics instructor's Clam Bake.
A fragment of the sole surviving clam showing bruises inflicted by instructors in melee.
- Exhibit B* A section of pipe; all that remained of Professor Miller's first boiler. (Specimen found fifty feet from scene of explosion.)
- Exhibit C* One complete set (13,678) of registration systems devised since 1900.
- Exhibit D* Skeletons of three students who held an exam postmortem in Central Square.
Radiator cap of mail-truck, jarred loose at same time.
- Exhibit E* Uniform worn by Cambridge policemen in 1869. (Temporarily loaned by policeman on vacation; to be returned when he resumes duty.)
- Exhibit F* Photograph of student pulling chair away from friend who is about to sit down. (This picture is valued by the student's parents, as their son was killed less than a minute after the picture was snapped.)
- Exhibit G* Photograph of Great Court, showing an abundance of foliage and grass — an exceptionally fine example of trick photography.
- Exhibit H* A section of Camembert cheese, showing clever organization of Strontium molecules. (From thesis of A. Egg.)
Bones of student who died for the sake of science.

EXPLANATORY RULES, REGULATIONS AND ROT. BOSTON ELEVATED RAILWAY CO.

1. Dudley was formerly governor of this state. More information in regard to Dudley may be obtained from his uncle, who writes editorials for the Globe.

2. On long trips, such as over Harvard Bridge, prospective passengers should make arrangements for sleeping accommodations.

3. Passengers should not ask the conductor foolish questions, such as "Which way does this car go?" and "Can I have a transfer?" These questions are all answered in Bulletin 101, obtainable on request.

4. One strap to a passenger. Straps are built to hang on to, not to sit in.

5. Do not stand near the doors. This space is reserved for women and children.

6. Boston Elevated time may be obtained by subtracting two hours, twenty-seven minutes from Daylight Saving Time.

THE COLLEGE AESOP

Once a bird got thirsty. He tried for a drink, but some Animal* had drunk everything in sight. Finally he found something that looked good, but the neck of the bottle was so tight that he could not quite get the stuff. He had a brilliant idea. He borrowed a few rocks from a friend, and dropped them in the bottle. Soon the stuff rose, and he drank all he wanted.

Moral: If you're thirsty and have plenty of rocks you can always get a drink.

The Bird in the Hand

Once a Young Thing had a swell Bird eating out of her hand. This Bird was always where she wanted him. They were walking down the brightly lighted one night on the way to supper, when they passed two other Birds of the rooster class who were rather much peacocky.

They gave her a wink. She gave them a Wink. Then she left No. One bird cold. No. One bird gaped and squawked a couple of times, and then Flew his merry way.

No sooner was he gone, though, than Along came a rather crumpled fowl of the fancy plumage sex and hauled her two youngsters off with her. And there was the poor Young Thing a Y. T. without any supper.

Moral: Hold 'em, Hilda.

AN ACTIVITIES DIRECTORY FOR FRESHMEN

The Tech — Get the news hot from the press; important notices and items are left in the office two weeks for the perusal of the competitors. They are then published for the benefit of the student body.

Technique — An ideal opportunity for those of political aspirations. The best man wins — as at Monte Carlo.

Track — The "biggest and cleanest" activity at the 'stute. Bursar Ford and Mike Hoar are behind it at every step.

Tech Show — A splendid opportunity for those artistically inclined. Fine physiques are needed in the management, others will find openings in the cast and chorus.

Freshmen Field — Day Teams — Pleasant, light exercise. Especially designed for those who enjoy a glorious defeat.

The Math Club — A few openings for red-blooded men. Treat yourself to that thrill which comes with the successful solution of an intricate problem. Let Professor Moore regale you with many a story of his travels through the Whiferpoo Islands in search of the elusive coincident foci of the tri-lateral ellipse. A well-appointed club room is provided on the fifth floor of Building 1, with an annex for the storage of overshoes.

Voo Doo — The modest and retiring disposition of Phosphorus forbids him from proclaiming broadcast the unlimited and inestimable advantages accruing through connection with his organ.

"Harvard Square car. Step up in the front of the car, please. All aboard."

("This car sure is crowded — that's right, you wood-hick, walk all over my feet — where d'yu think yu are? — in a plowed field?")

"North Hampton Street. Fares, please."

("How about a dime, there — this isn't any clam-diggers' picnic — move away from that door, willya, so I can close it — I wonder if Maggie has a date to-night — that reminds me, I've gotta knock down some coin this trip.")

"Columbus Avenue!"

("Come on, step lively, you're no pall bearer.")

"Fares, please."

("What's that? — nothin' smaller than a ten? — I suppose you figger you'll get a free ride cuz I can't change it — well, you're wrong, brother, I'd change that if I hadda break up this car and make nickels outta it — that's right, make sure I ring it up — I suppose you're a spotter.")

"Huntington Avenue!"

("Ah, a pretty keen dame — hey, you with the funny looking hat, make way for the lady — transfer, lady? — yes, change at Central Square — yes, I'll tell you when to get off — oh, look at this old dame with the kid — whassat? he's under five — say, if he's only four years old I'll be eight my next birthday — transfer? — here — certainly you change at Harvard Square — where d'ja think?")

"Beacon Street, Harvard Square car!"

("Does this car go to Harvard Square? — YES, you can read, can't ya? — let you out at Harvard Square?

A Grave Error

An Impressive Ceremony

— listen, egg, the only way you could possibly stay in this car when we get there, would be to hide under the seat.")

"Central Square!"

("Come on, snap to, bohunk, snap to — whatta ya think you're doin'? — climbin' outta a apple tree? — why, you dumb-bell, whatja drop in those five pennies for? — Ja think you were at church? — come on, drop in another dime — your father can stand the loss — do we stop at Harvard Square? — I hope so, if we don't we'll go right the hell into the river — let you out at Harvard Square? — s-a-y, these doors aren't locked.")

CIRCULATION THIS ISSUE 4400 COPIES

As VOO DOO goes to press this issue Harvard goes to football. Technology goes to football too, but not with Harvard. Time was when Harvard and Technology had football games together, and had annual brick fights on Washington Street. But that is time gone by. With true sportsmanship and hospitality Harvard clubs have since been opened to Technology teams in various towns. Tech crews row in shells which are the gift of Harvard. Everywhere our antagonism to the older institution has met with courtesy and friendliness. We have obviously no longer a crow to pick. As Phosphorus put on his raincoat before the game he wondered how much longer the narrow prejudices will exist. Can noblesse oblige remain one sided?

With its usual reek of riot and registration, another collegiate year has its birth. Our motley parade of brown-bag-burdened, golf-garbed, grotesques lend reason to reality. To those of the upper classes the event holds only the significance of another year of grind with an occasional recess; but to our Freshmen it marks a turning point in life. Certainly, the horrors of their first registration will leave an impression that only time and The Lenox can efface.

Since Tech was founded and the plumbing trade first experienced a shortage of apprentices, every Freshman class has exhibited the same traits as its immediate forbears. So, we are safe in assuming that this batch of novices will run true to form. A few of them have already formulated a definite plan of action for their next four years, though the majority will be inclined to drift until they have become definitely oriented. Which means that in a month or more the members of the class will have somewhat definitely allied themselves with one of two factions; viz., the grinds and the drifters.

Both of these types are well known; in fact, might well be called Technology institutions. Let us characterize each extreme in its true color.

J. Sappe, though he may not know it, is called a grind by his fellow students. He believes that he is making the most of his four years' education, and does not realize that he is sacrificing one of the most important factors—his associations. His conquests in this line may easily be summed up—a mental picture of Kendall Station, a speaking acquaintance with most of the professors, and a vague recollection of having once seen the Tech crew on the river. Beyond that and his technical knowledge, he doesn't know what it's all about. If he were the only one voting in a popularity contest, Triple E would be declared the most popular subject and chess the favorite major sport. A good man gone stale.

W. Egge is the second individual under the hammer. His only achievement to date is his entrance to Tech, and he believes that sufficient to last him the rest of his life. Cutting classes is his idea of a snappy, he-man sport, while at bowling he is considered quite an adept. Believe him and Tech is easy. If he cared to study he'd be knocking out the marks with the best of them. Just to prove it, next term he'll begin and then—! But next term doesn't arrive as far as W. E. is concerned, so January finds his name among those not present.

Freshmen, it is up to you! Technology is not solely a "brain factory," as many misguided outsiders are inclined to think. On the other hand, it is by no means a "collegiate country club," and those who attempt to treat it as such will soon find themselves prematurely prominent in Who's Through in Technology. It is to those men who find time for extra curriculum activities as well as curriculum activities, and who capitalize the associations and experience thus gained, that we owe our reputation, ideals, and institutions.

To sum up the secret of success in two lines:

Don't grind to avoid drifting!
Vice versa!

"Check?"
"Naw. Slovak."

ALMA MATER SONG

BY H. CHASER

I

With brown bags and with slipsticks
 I sit up late at night,
 Working, digging, and grinding;
 I bone with all my might.

Chorus:

We love to study, love to work,
 We never from our duty shirk,
 So let the bonny brown bag be
 True spirit of Technology.

II

I am there in my chamber
 With Math and Theoret;
 My pen can hardly tell you
 How much they make me fret.

Chorus:

III

I go to no class meetings,
 I study Triple E,
 And don't solve one lone problem —
 That's what Tech's done to me.

Chorus:

IV

My profs have no conception
 How often I have sighed,
 Trying to work my Physics
 And get through my Applied.

Chorus:

V

Now after six years' grinding
 At the old Institute,
 I've found at last its secret:
 Young man, you must commute!

Chorus:

We love to study, love to work,
 We never from our duties shirk,
 So let the bonny brown bag be
 True spirit of Technology.

CHARLIE'S ROMANCE

There, I'm again in love. But it seems Charlie, my room mate is, too. I never would have thought it of him, that realistic old boy. But then none of us is immune. I just looked over his shoulder. He didn't notice it, he was so absorbed in his thoughts. And guess what I saw? A long line of S S S S S S S S S S S

Wonder what her name is, Sally or Sylvia, or what? Let me look again, maybe that'll give me some clue. I'd like to know the girl who put it over on him. Oh, what is that? $ $ $ $ $ $ $ $ $ $ $

This: "I see where the natives over in some place or other rub garlic on their legs to prevent snake bites."

That: "Yes — friend of mine got bitten to death over there."

This: "Why — didn't he use the garlic?"

That: "Oh, yes. You see — the snake had a bad cold in his head."

DELIRIUM

I

Six puppies eating dog bread by the yard;
 A fly entangled in some tanglefoot;
 A pallid person pilfering pale pills;
 A bluefish gulping Grandpa Moore's swamproot!

II

A bullfrog croaking by a marshy pool;
 A pollywog agog, with weeping eyes;
 A narrow, mirthless mimicry, no doubt;
 They'll have to use a mordant when he dies!

III

Six crocodiles lie basking in the sun;
 The moon is hovering o'er the marshy pool;
 A crow flies overhead, and caws;
 A flabbergasting, flickering, fickle fool!

IV

This is enough of nonsense for one poem;
 Without a doubt my thoughts are put to rout;
 When father put the raisins in the brew
 He should have left at least a dozen out.

'25: "Why the hurry?"

'24: "I'm pursuing my studies."

'25: "How come?"

'24: "I haven't caught up with them yet."

I knew two darling girls named Dot
 Who had a dog named Dash;
 They went a-bathing every day
 And made a mighty splash.

The Dots had dainty bathing suits
 And their good Dash, what not;
 So when they came from out the waves
 You could see Dot, Dash, Dot.

"Do you smoke?" asked the stranger, as he descended into the volcano.

At "The Bat": "Say, Gertie, I'm not a bit sleepy. Let's sit up and talk to-night."

A TRUE STORY

Si Buckwheat had been brought to court for speeding, because he was driving at a rate of 95 miles per hour, and had been fined ten dollars. However, before paying his fine he had insulted the judge by calling him names, and escaped through the window. When the motorcycle cop brought him back the good-natured judge fined him another ten dollars, and added, "And remember for the future, had you been chaste and refined, you would not have been chased and refined."

Many nights from studies
Many rolls of green
And now another flapper
Thinks she is his queen.

Aviator: "I fooled seventy-five per cent of those people down there then. They thought we were going to fall."

Passenger: "Yes, and you fooled fifty per cent of us up here."

OLD AGE
YOUR HONOR.

"I'll have a fit in a moment," remarked the student bending over the French curve.

"Bring it up to a point," remarked the ant to her companion, who was dragging some sawdust.

A young man without thinking why
A new safety razor did buy;
He was shaving with lard
When off came the guard!
Now he twangs on a harp in the sky!

Lamb: "What time is it?"

Stew: "It musht be the shero hour caushe I didn't hear the clock shtrike."

First Harvard Student: "I think Terrence is the most modest man I ever knew."

Second Wise Cracker: "How's that?"

First H. S.: "Why, his girl called him on the phone this morning and he wouldn't answer because he was in his pajamas."

Urban: "Are you interested in our latest model, sir?"

Rural: "Nope. Just want to see what it feels like to go in front of one of them without getting hit."

One of Napoleon's Faithful Supporters

"And were you frightened when the burglar broke into your room?"

"Frightened! I should say I was. I was dressing."

"How embarrassing. What did you do?"

"Oh, that was all right. He was a gentleman burglar. He covered me with his revolver."

The man who buys the Brooklyn Bridge will have to come across.

The lion, king of all wild beasts,
When in bad humor, often feasts;
Tears up an ape and swallows him,
As negroes tell, with mighty vim.

I am no lion, am no king;
Yet I did want to try this thing;
I wrote these lines, and I allow
That I am feeling better now.

High Brow: "Do you have any confidence in Monroe's Doctrine?"

Low Brow: "No, not at all; I even doubt if he graduated from Medical School."

"Lend me your hand," remarked the poker player in an uncontrolled moment.

Spike: "Why do you call those prohibition officers variety?"

Pat: "'Cause they're the spies of life."

"I say, old chap, have you seen 'The Oath?'"
"Really, it looks to me more like 'The Bawth.'"

Mug: "What's showing at the movies to-night?"

Wump: "I'm not quite sure, but I hear she only wears some beads."

— Lord Jeff

Bank Inspector: "Where's the cashier? Gone for a rest?"

President: "No, to avoid it."

— Gargoyle

She: "I've got you down for a couple of tickets. We're getting up a little raffle for poor old college professor of our neighborhood, who's down and out."

He: "No, thanks, no tickets for me. I wouldn't know what to do with the old boy if I won him."

— Sun Dodger

Judas: "You can tell that that bird's a card shark to look at him."

Priest: "You certainly can. Why, he even walks with a shuffle."

— Virginia Reel

Cass Cade: "What is the best boat for shooting rapids?"

Water Fall: "A gunboat."

— Goblin

Prof. of Biblical History: "When was the automobile first mentioned in the Bible?"

The Younger Set: "When Elijah crossed the river Jordan by a Ford and went up on high."

— Whirlwind

Tough on the Profs.

"Why do you call that fellow professor?"

"He thinks he knows a lot and he never did a day's work in his life."

— Squib

"Here's my bill," said the surgeon. "Wish you would pay down $100, and then $25 per week."

"Sounds like buying an automobile," said the patient.

"I am," said the surgeon. — Charlestown News and Courier.

Thoughtless, at Least

"So Bill Grimsby is now living next to your place at Suburbia? How do you find him as a close-up neighbor?"

"Make your own deductions when I tell you that he borrowed my bottle-capping machine, kept it two weeks and returned it with thanks only."

— Judge

Why Guess ?

The basic law of action—reaction governs our business, exactly as it does our scientific world.

Its operation is as unchanging as that of the law of gravitation. Result follows cause. Business travels in a cycle of prosperity, decline, depression and improvement with almost clock-like regularity.

Babson's Reports

Based on fundamental conditions, interpret these laws and forecast conditions for you with remarkable accuracy. They take the gamble out of business.

By basing your plans—expansion, sales, buying, advertising, production—on the facts and forecasts furnished by Babson's Service to Executives you can reduce your margin of errors and increase your net profits materially.
