

The MIT Vegetarian Group is a very informal organization interested in vegetarian issues. Membership is free, noncommittal and comes with no requirements (being vegetarian is not a prerequisite).

Our activities include:

- a number of electronic mailing lists for general discussion, recipe exchange, and setting up dinner trips in the Boston area.
- Various informal social events, such as potluck, communal meals, or dining at some of the Boston area's several veggie-friendly restaurants. Many of these outings are organized over the veg-dine discussion list. Also check our upcoming events...
- reserved advocacy/publicity for vegetarianism, such as booths in Lobby 10, working with the MIT Food Service and MIT Medical, participating in R/O week, etc. What have we been up to in this arena? Check out the recent happenings with the Vegetarian Group...
- a directory on Athena with varied information.
