Instructions for the preparation of the one-page Abstract, due latest on March 15, 2001

Klaus-Jürgen Bathe
Massachusetts Institute of Technology
Cambridge, Massachusetts, USA
kjb@mit.edu

The objective of this abstract is to tell you how to prepare your one-page Abstract for the First M.I.T. Conference on Computational Fluid and Solid Mechanics, June 12 -15, 2001. Please note that a fourth day, that is Friday, June 15 has been added to the Conference date, because of the enthusiastic response for the Conference. Many more papers were submitted than anticipated and there are of course also the exciting industry sessions (for which many speakers did not submit papers).

The Conference promises to be a very valuable scientific event and we are very glad that you will still submit an Abstract. This option of submitting an Abstract is made available because many interested researchers and practitioners of computational mechanics did not have the time to prepare a paper or even did not hear of the Conference until the due date for the submission of papers had passed. We would like to make it still possible for those people to come and present at the Conference.

Please note that your Abstract will be included in a soft-cover Compilation of Abstracts which will be furnished to the participants of the Conference. You will be given the same amount of time for the presentation of your work as those speakers who prepared a short paper (the official due date for these papers was Sept. 30, 2000), BUT you must please follow strictly the present requirements for preparing your Abstract.

The length of the Abstract, including all writing must fit on no more than one single 8 ½ by 11 inch page. The Abstract must carry the title, your name and affiliation, the main body of text, and any necessary references. No figures or tables are allowed. Please prepare your Abstract in the way this writing was prepared.

All Abstracts must of course be written in the English language. Please use reasonably good English (1). All text should be in the Times New Roman font, size 11 points and single-spaced.

Please prepare an electronic version in PostScript (.ps) format and email it to kjb@mit.edu at the latest on March 15, 2001. We cannot accept late Abstracts, received late for any reason whatsoever, because the Abstracts will go to the printer to prepare the soft-cover Compilation of Abstracts.

By submitting an Abstract you commit yourself to come to the Conference and present your work.

Thank you and good luck. We are very much looking forward to welcoming you at M.I.T. Please note also that there are many wonderful places to see in Boston and the surroundings (2) and we hope that you will have time to enjoy Boston, Cape Cod, and the other New England attractions as well when you are here.

References
