
Warrant

Motions having been previously examined and overruled, this warrant is now granted to the local police as a last resort, giving them unlimited authority to search the premises of team

_____.

The police officers are hereby granted unlimited time and access to said headquarters, with the rights to both search the premises and to interview all the members of the team. Teams should be aware that there's only one option for ending the interrogation: tough information.

Teams looking for the reason should find this within the warrant itself.

To that end, they may need to adjust the right extra information as required.

Teams are ordered to cooperate to the fullest with the authorities in this matter; everyone hand the officers whatever they need when they ask for it.

In addition, the police are authorized to, if they deem it appropriate, interview groups of suspects separately by gender. Female suspects may see female officers ask about their own potential motives.

The police officers are now gathering all the facts and evidence and hope not to have to return, but they may yet come when they determine more information is required.

Signed on this _____ day of _____, 2008,

Judge _____