A NEW COMMUNICATION MEDIUM FOR CSR

by J. H. Saltzer

This note is the first in a new series intended to provide communication within the Computer Systems Research Division. The intent of the series is to be a relatively informal means for students and staff to try out drafts of proposals and papers, and to report locally interesting results to one another.

To add something to the series, submit a draft (preferably typed) to me. I will act as a casual editor of the series. Ideas do not have to be in final form to qualify. On the other hand, you should have tried out a draft of the RFC on a few friendly observers before shipping it out for everyone to look at.

When an RFC in the series arrives on your desk, you will probably want to read it, and if you have any comments, go talk to the author. The object is to promote discussion.

Distribution will be limited to CSR Division members, and individuals in other organizations who are working in areas closely related to our own. An initial distribution list is attached.
